Parallel Blocks

The FRS interview consists of a 'Household Schedule' and a 'Benefit Unit Schedule' which is repeated for as many benefit units as there are in the household (see definition of benefit units at ShowBen). Each of these is known generically as a parallel block. There are also other parallel blTQ such as the 'Admin BlT' and the 'Recall Block'. Sometimes these blocks are referred to as parallel fields.

Owned Accommodation & Mortgages

Overview of the mortgage section

- Re-mortgages:

Re-mortgages are used to rais2 money by increasing the total amount borrowed, or to take advantage of a cheaper interest rate, usually from a different lender. The old mortgage is paid off and a new mortgage starts, so there is still just one mortgage to be dealt with. The amount originally borrowed is recorded first at Borrowed Amount, then the total amount of the re-mortgage at R Amount. The subsequent questions are with reference to the re-mortgage.

- Further borrowing secured on the property in addition to the mortgage for purchase:

In addition to re-mortgages, people buying their accommodation with a mortgage or loan may borrow extra money, to ra(ea)3(s)11fundssor various purposes, in two different ways.

- Separate second mortgages

One way is by taking out a new mortgage or loan, completely separate to that for purchase, either with the same lender or a different one. Separate payments will be

10 years and the repayment of the loan is based on the market value at that particular time.
These mortgages are treated as regular mortgages by banks and building societies and should be treated as such within the questionnaire.

Example:
Respondent purchasesMororty using this scheme for £200,000Mond requires a mortgage for Ã140,000 (70% of the purchase price) and has a 1loanôfor Ã60,000 (remaining 30%). They sell the house in 5 years time and the house has increased in value to £30M so they then pay the loan back based on 30M% of the market value at the time of the sale (i.e. £9.

Question Information for Flexible Mortgage

Flexible mortgages
